

ANDREA BONI - Sound Engineer

He was born in Fano in 1990 and entered very young in the audio / electronic field.

His first experiences in small services in his area will help him to expand his knowledge and fully immerse himself in this profession.

He then began to actively collaborate with musical groups and theater companies, initially as a backliner and a microphone player, then more and more frequently he collaborated with the greatest service, developing and deepening his career as a live sound engineer.

He attended the professional course at the Naive Recording studio in Fano directed by the producer and composer Francesco De Benedittis.

These studies will open a new path in his professional career and will thus be able to specialize also as a studio sound engineer and to follow up various professional collaborations.

Passionate about music and entertainment in general, he also has experience and collaborations as a director and playwright.
